

Tuesday, March 4, 2008
Sittercity on The View

Fabulous for Fabu-Less

Guest: Michael Fazio, Professional Concierge

Michael Fazio: So, listen, I want to talk about nannies too. This is probably one of the most requested services in my company. Abigail Michaels has clients going from gala to gala to gala – the kids stay at home, right? So if you don't have a budget for the $80,000-a-year Mary Poppins, I have another secret resource.

It's called Sittercity. Sittercity.com is the first and largest network service online where you can find really, really great babysitters.

You know, if you follow the tools and use the tools that they have, you'll be going through the same steps that these really expensive placement agencies would take to find a good, vetted babysitter.

Whoopi Goldberg: So, are they doing all the security checks... they're doing everything?

Michael Fazio: On Sittercity, you can do a background check, you can read to see what other parents are writing about that sitter, and they're going to be launching video interviews online, so you can actually, you know, virtually meet your potential babysitter. It's really great. $95 a year or you can pay as you go. It's a great resource and we use it!

Sherri Shepard: That's not much!

Whoopi Goldberg: That's really great.